11. Describe (do not just list) the crime(s) identified in Question 9. Explain the circumstances surrounding the crime(s), and why you committed the crime(s). Attach additional sheets of paper if necessary.

I was charged with possession of child pornography in Aug. 2015. It was at a time in my life when I was in business for myself and under great stress. I was overworked, depressed and lonely. I started looking into things that distracted me from the real issues at the time. It was no excuse for my behavior though. Looking back, I should have turned to my faith, family and friends instead.

After my arrest, I was able to bail out and go home. I was in shock at the turn my life had taken.

I sought out a psychologist that specialized in sexual behaviors, to figure out what was going on with me.

I also started attending a weekly S.O. program for 8 months. In that time, I learned a lot about my

12. Explain the extraordinary circumstances that you believe warrant a waiver of the Governor's eligibility rules. For example, an extraordinary circumstance could be, but is not necessarily, the fact that the conviction prohibits you from obtaining specific employment. However, the desire to hunt or possess a firearm for hunting purposes does not constitute extraordinary circumstances.

Besides obvious health risks to myself, my release is beneficial to my family and local community. I'm experienced in trucking and agriculture. I have offers for employment and can work. A larger concern is for my folks who are older and are trying to take care of the farm. My incarceration has caused an emotional, physical and financial toll on them. As a result, a family home and acreage that's been in our name for decades may have to be sold off because I'm not there to help. My Dad often says that my early release would be a game changer for them. It's important that I get back home to help them.

Crime, its impact on victims as well as on society. I also learned a lot about myself and what brought me to that low point in my life.

The person I had become isn't who I am or what I aspire to be. I never want to be the cause of harm to another. I accept responsibility for my actions and moving forward, I know I must strive to always do better.
